

Genomics and Philosophy of Race

Black Community Services Center
Stanford University

November 15, 2013

Local support provided by the Stanford Center for Computational, Evolutionary, and Human Genomics

Meeting 1 of 3 on the 2013-2014 program on Genomics and the Philosophy of Race

Meeting 1 – Department of Biology, Stanford University

Meeting 2 – Department of Philosophy, UC Davis

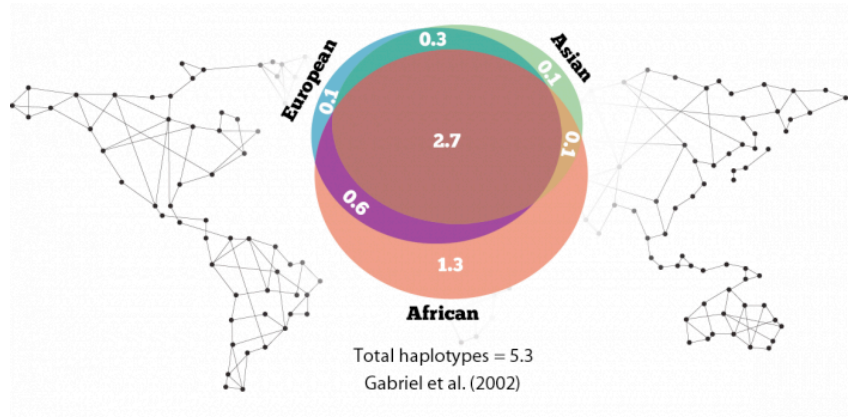

Meeting 3 – Institute for Humanities Research, UC Santa Cruz

9:00-9:30	Welcome and coffee
Rasmus Winther	Opening Remarks	Philosophy, UC Santa Cruz
	Introductions
Noah Rosenberg	Human genetic clustering: results, responses to some critiques, and interpretive challenges	Biology, Stanford
Marc Feldman	Levels of Complexity in the Genomics-"Race" Issue	Biology, Stanford
	Coffee break
Rasmus Nielsen	Semantics of population genetics: demes, populations, races and other categories	Integrative Biology, UC Berkeley
12:00-1:15	Lunch
Roberta Millstein	The Concepts of 'Population' and 'Metapopulation' in the Genomics of Race: Introduction and Questions	Philosophy, UC Davis
Jim Griesemer	Model Taxa as Research Platforms	Philosophy, UC Davis
	Coffee break
Rasmus Winther	The Lewontin-Edwards Debate? Methodological, Epistemological, and Ethical Dimensions	Philosophy, UC Santa Cruz
Quayshawn Spencer	Race, Meaning, and Reality (Closing Remarks)	Philosophy, University of San Francisco
3:00-4:00	Informal social hour at Stanford Treehouse

Genomics and Philosophy of Race

Andrews Room (2203 SSH)
University of California, Davis

March 10, 2014

Local support provided by UCD's Office of the Dean of Social Sciences, Department of Philosophy, Science and Technology Studies, and funds from Jim Griesemer's Herbert A. Young Society Fellowship.

Cluster organizer: Rasmus Winther. Local organizers: Roberta Millstein, Andrés Barragán, Jim Griesemer.

Meeting 2 of 3 of the 2013-2014 Genomics and Philosophy of Race Research Cluster

Meeting 1 - Introductory workshop, Stanford University

Meeting 2 - Workshop with graduate student focus, UC Davis

Meeting 3 - Public conference, UC Santa Cruz

9:15-9:45	Welcome and coffee
9:45-10:00	Roberta L. Millstein , Philosophy/STS, UC Davis	Opening remarks
10:00-10:45	Graham Coop , Evolution and Ecology, UC Davis	"A genomic view of recent genealogical relatedness"
10:45-11:30	Doc Edge , Biology, Stanford	"Multilocus Classification Accuracy and Multilocus Trait Differences"
11:30-12:45	Lunch
12:45-1:30	Mel Yang , Integrative Biology, UC Berkeley	"Using a projection analysis to explore human demographic history"
1:30-2:15	Michael Hunter , Philosophy, UC Davis	"Populations, Individuals and Biological Race"
2:15-2:30	Coffee break
2:30-3:15	Andrés Barragán , Anthropology/STS, UC Davis	"On becoming mestizo: cultural and phenotypic conscriptions"
3:15-4:00	Brian Matthew Donovan , Education, Stanford	"Playing With Fire? The Impact of the Hidden Curriculum in School Genetics on Essentialist Conceptions of Race"
4:00-4:15	Rasmus Grønfeldt Winther , Philosophy, UC Santa Cruz	Closing remarks
4:15 - ?	Informal social time (Burgers and Brew)

The “Genomics and Philosophy of Race” conference aims to foster a dialogue about race, and, in particular, about relationships between ideas of race and modern genomics research.

Four panels of experts and two keynote speakers will consider scientific, historical, sociological, and philosophical questions: Does contemporary genomics inform and shift our classifications, conceptualizations, and consciousness of race? To what extent is race real? Which inferences, if any, about the body, mind, and culture might race and related concepts (e.g., ancestry and ethnicity) ground?

Genomics & Philosophy of Race

April 12-13, 2014

Presented by the:

Philosophy in a Multicultural
Context Research Cluster

Saturday, April 12 ~ 10am-6pm

10:00am Brief Opening Comments:

William A. Ladusaw, UCSC, Humanities Dean

Nathaniel Deutsch, UCSC, Institute for Humanities Research Director

Rasmus Grønfeldt Winther, UCSC, PI "Philosophy in a Multicultural Context"

10:15am Opening Keynote:

Sarah Richardson, Harvard: "Race in the Postgenomic Moment"

11:00am Biology Panel:

Bridget Algee-Hewitt, Stanford: "Forensic Casework and the Clustering of Human Craniofacial Variation"

Doc Edge, Stanford: "Multilocus Classification Accuracy and Polygenic Trait Differences"

Scott Lokey, UCSC: "Pharmacology in the genomic age: targeting drugs to (and keeping them away from) specific subpopulations"

Rasmus Nielsen, UC Berkeley: "On the genomic basis of the biological concept of race"

Noah Rosenberg, Stanford: "Properties of human population-genetic clustering"

1:00pm Lunch

2:00pm History Panel:

Nathaniel Deutsch, UCSC: "The 'Jewish Question' Revisited: Genomics and Jewish Difference"

Lisa Gannett, St. Mary's University: "The relevance (or not) of Dobzhansky and the evolutionary synthesis for contemporary population genomics"

Minghui Hu, UCSC: "The Eclipse of Darwinism and Its Chinese Accommodation"

Carlos López Beltrán, National Autonomous Univ of Mexico: "Mestizo Genomics. National, regional and ethnic figurations"

Paula Moya, Stanford: "Racial Realisms, or When Do We Describe, and When Do We 'Do Race'?"

4:00pm Sociology Panel:

John Brown Childs, UCSC: "Geneologies of the Spirit: Spiraling Strands of Ethical Kinship Across Racialized Spaces"

Guillermo Delgado-P, UCSC: "Genomics and Isolation: the Case of Indigenous Peoples in Latin America"

Hiroshi Fukurai, UCSC: "Genomics and Race: Social, Political, Legal, & "Performative" Construction of Race"

Sandra Harvey, UCSC: "On the 'HeLa Bomb': Race and Gender Passing Narratives in Biotechnology" Stephanie Montgomery, UCSC: "Nǚfàn: Gender, Criminality and the Prison in 1930s Qingdao"

Sunday, April 13 ~ 9am-12pm

9:00am Philosophy Panel:

Josh Glasgow, Sonoma State: "Biological-trait race without biological race"

James Griesemer, UC Davis: "Some Thoughts on Population Studies and the Ethics of Attention"

Jonathan Kaplan, Oregon State University: "Some Relationships Between Biological and Folk Races"

Roberta Millstein, UC Davis: "Thinking about populations and races in time"

Rasmus Grønfeldt Winther, UCSC: "Are Races like Constellations?"

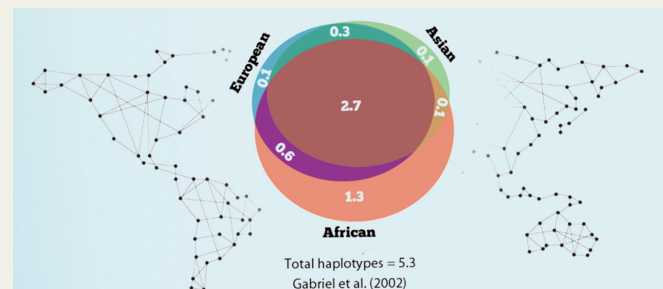

11:00am Closing Keynote:

Quayshawn Spencer, University of San Francisco: "Philosophy of Race Meets Population Genetics"

12:00pm Lunch

1:00-2:30pm Student Workshops:

Student workshops will be led by PhD students involved in the Philosophy in a Multicultural Context research cluster. Workshops will be held in Kresge Seminar Room 159.
